Pang Yim's Store-Room and Another International Match.

Romantic Marriage of Robert Storaci, an Italian Fruit Merchant, and Miss Pulliam.

Doubtless very few people who patronize the little fruit store in Room 9, Wyandot Block, are aware that the owner of the blonde head which peeps above the cash of sunny Italy who politely deals out the luscious banana. The flashing black eyes and soft, southern accent of Robert Storaci proclaim his nativity, while the peachy cheeks and azure orbs of his wife give the undeniable stamp of the American girl.

Until last Tuesday night Mrs. Storaci was a rollicking school girl in short skirts. Her name was Carrie Pulliam. She resided with her foster parents, at No. 231 Alvord street, and attended one of the North-side schools. The marriage of the Italian and his young American wife is full of romance. In the desk of the superintendent of police is a photograph, a fac-simile of Mrs. Storaci's laughing face, and it is, perhaps, through the intervention of the police authorities that the little affair of heart between the Italian and the American girl had its happy culmination. The young wife is but little past sixteen, while her husband is nearly fifteen years her senior. The romantic acquaintance of the couple, it seems, began over a year ago. Storacl formerly operated a fruit store in another section of the city, and made the acquaintance of Miss Pulliam as she passed his place on her way to school. The young dealer kept a particularly choice line of sweets, and the young lady soon learned that the smile which lighted up the dark face when she stepped in to make a purchase was singularly fascinating. As the days passed Miss Pulliam's demands for fruit grew appallingly frequent, and before three months had passed the acquaintance between her and the merchant had reached the extent that Robert often found it convenient to walk home with her. On these occasions it is presumed that the young man carried the girl's books and decorously passed them over to her at the gate. Soon the mother of the girl was brought face to face with the Italian lover, and she promptly set about to extinguish the flame that was burning in her daughter's heart. Robert was refused admission to the house, and, with the girl, grew despondent. However, they continued to keep lonely vigils far from the parental roof, and the girl's mother persuaded herself that she would have no further trouble. Affairs in the household ran smoothly enough until three afternoon. Her mother, suspecting that the superintendent of police and laid before him a photograph of her daughter. She was greatly agitated, and without hesitation explained her fears. An officer was sent out to look up Storaci, but before he could be found the superintendent received a visit from the Italian nimsell. He, too was excited, and informed Superintendent Powell that he had come to deliver up Miss Pulliam. At the same time he presented a letter from one of the city officials which stated that the bearer was well prepared to give bond in case he should be detained. Storaci explained in his broken way that the girl was at the home of one of her friends on South Meridian street, where he had accompanied her the night before. He had left her at the door and had not since seen her. On the advice of the superintendent he went after the young lady, and the couple soon returned. Police matron Buchanan was called into consultation, and after a brief conversation with Storact learned the extent of the affection existing between the two. The girl avowed her love for Robert and the latter signified how deeply he reciprocated by placing his slender hand over his heart. The movement was accompanied with a deep sign that admitted no denial of the soft passion. His speech also convinced the officials that the young man was educated, and he assured them that his intentions toward the girl were thoroughly honorable. The interview resulted in the offer of the police matron to accompany the girl home. The result of the visit greatly modified the mother's wrath, and she promised to allow her daughter the use of the parlor for the occasional entertainment of her lover. She also agreed to allow the marriage to take place when the girl was eighteen. The couple accepted the inevitable and all was apparently settled, but it appears that after cussing the matter between them Miss Pulliam and Storaci decided that two years was too long to walt, and at once began a series of importunities that finally grew too warm for the parents. Last Tuesday it was agreed that the marriage should take place, and Miss Pulliam threw aside her school books for the graver responsibilities of a wife. The nuptials were quietly solemnized Tuesday night, and on Wednesday morning Mrs. Stroaci took charge of a modest home on North Alabama street. To those familiar with the locality and the details of the interesting story that had for its culmination a more interesting sequel, it would seem that Room "9" in the Wyandot Block is a veritable propagator of modern romance. Two years ago Pang Yim, a tea and curio dealer, in Room "9," made himself famous for a day by taking to wife a young white girl. Mr. and Mrs. Yim retired from the sight of the public eye, but the fated apartment remained and has again fulfilled its mission in the world of romance.

Three Boys Charged with Robbery. Detectives Doherty and Wilson yesterday arrested three lads named Louis Dollman, George Guhrlick and William Schweitzer. all residing on the South Side. The prisoners are accused of robbing the grocery store of Charles Buddenbaum, on Prospect street. The robbery occurred on Friday night of last week. Tobacco, cigars and groceries, amounting to $40, were carried off by the thieves.

Relief Committee Estimates That a Thousand Families Are in Want.

Responses Received to the Personal Appeals for Contributions for Charity.

The Commercial Club relief committee estimates from present indications that before the week is over there will be one thousand families in Indianapolis who will be on the verge of starvation. The committee states that this represents about four thousand persons. Their only hope for food now rests with the success of the efforts of the Commercial Club relief committee to establish a food market before the close of the week. The available funds of the Charity Organization Society, which Books for Grown People have been used under the direction of the committee up to this time, will be soon exhausted. There are now over eight hundred families who are being supported. These have been sufficiently supplied up to the present time. It has been the purpose of the committee to carry on its work quietly, and therefore no appeal for contributions has been made until within the last few days, but the need of money cannot now be longer deferred.

Chairman Hanna said yesterday that the situation was one of extreme gravity. "These destitute people," said he, "are here and must be provided for. The committee has undertaken to care for them, and it will do so to the full extent of its ability. The public must do its part. The committee has given its time to the work, both day

The arrangements for the food market are now being put in shape, and if the requisite support is forthcoming from the public it will be open before the close of the week. The indications are that this will be given. It will be the plan of the committee to supply food only to persons of established residence, who are found to be in need of aid. These will be given credit for the purchase of a sufficient quantity of substantial articles of food to last a certain length of time. This will continue as long as may be necessary. COMMERCIAL CLUB ELECTION.

Nominating Committee to Be Announced in a Few Days.

The Commercial Club will select new directors for the coming year Feb. 2. The directors chosen at that time will elect the club's officers. The nominating committee, which is named by the president, will announce the names of gentlemen to be voted for Jan. 15. The ticket selected by this committee is known as the "regular" ticket. Any number of tickets can be placed in the field other than the regular ticket, the only conditions being that at least twelve of the club's membership indorse in writing to the club's officers the names of candidates to be voted for. President Lilly has not yet announced the nominating committee, but states that he will do so the first of the year. Indications point strongly to a lively contest at the next annual election of directors. The selection of directors will have all to do with the election of officers to serve next year. The recent dissatisfaction regarding the club's affairs has assumed such proportions as to warrant the statement that an attempt will be made by some of the members to have a new deal all around.

The plaintiff set up the claim that several years ago he was employed, under agreement, to solicit contributions and endowments for the university, the under-standing being that he was to receive a certain percentage of all the funds which he might be able to collect. Anthony Swisher, a wealthy bachelor, died, leaving an immense estate, Smith claimed that he had induced Swisher to leave the DePauw University $20,000, and was entitled, under the previous agreement with the defend-ant, to the amount claimed.

DR. BARKER AGAIN.

Thought He Saw His Assailant of Last Week and Attacked Him.

Dr. A. B. Barker, a physician occupying an office at No. 41/2 West Washington street, was arrested yesterday on the charge of assault and battery. The arrest was made on a warrant sworn out by Walter B. Harris, of No. 1368 North Illinois street. The Doctor's detention, it seems, grew out of an escapade in which he was prominent one night last week. While conversing with a woman on the Circle, he was rudely interrupted by a stranger, who dragged him away to his office. Here the Doctor claimed that his captor attempted to harm him, and he called in the police. The stranger escaped. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Barker, while standing at the foot of the stairway leading to his office, saw Mr. Harris pass along. The physician believed that he had found his alleged assailant and rushed after him. The astonished Harris found himself the victim of a savage attack at the hands of the Doctor, and beat a retreat. He at once swore out a warrant for Barker's arrest.

THE ALERT CLOUD INSPECTOR.

He Sees an Attempted Burglary from His High Perch.

Thieves gained an entrance into the Atlantic and Pacific tea store, corner of Alabama and Washington streets, last night, by breaking through one of the large windows. Tower watchman James heard the crash of the glass, but before he could give the alarm he saw a man run out of the store. The thief was evidently frightened away, as a considerable amount of small coin was found scattered about the door through which he made his exit. The cash drawer contained less than a dollar and nothing else was disturbed.

On arrival at the spot selected for the battle both men decided that razors would be more effective. They were sent to the sta-tion house yesterday bearing distinct marks of the fray. Both were charged with assault and battery.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Sheridan, or the Maid of Bath," the new play which Mr. E. H. Sothern will present at the Grand to-night and Wednesday matinee and evening, is a novelty quite distinct from anything in which this talented young comedian has been seen as yet. The character Mr. Sothern assumes is that of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who, as an orator, swayed the English Parliament at the will of his peerless eloquence; as an author he wrote the best English comedies since the days of Shakspeare; as a lover he won the maid of Bath with the point of his sword and the persuasiveness of his the action of the present play, and the persons known to have shared in them are brought forward as the characters of the present production. The scene of the play is at Bath, the social center of England one hundred years ago, and the surroundings are said to be in exquisite taste. The scenic appointments and costumes illustrate England in the period of her gayest and most gallant humor, and Mr. Sothern's persistent effort has been to have them as thoroughly correct as are the facts which are the foundation of his new play.

Park Theater-Hopkins Specialty Co. The Hopkins Transoceanic Specialty Company, which began an engagement at the Park Theater yesterday, demonstrated that there is such a thing as "something new" in a vaudeville entertainment without having song and dance teams or "black-face" performers. The company is made up of a number of men and women who do acts as novel as they are entertaining. Heading horizontal bars. Eddie and Josie Evans, in a sketch; Will H. Fox, in his clever monoogue act and piano playing; pretty little Ada Melrose, in a new specialty; Kara, the greatest juggler ever seen here; Fulgora, a European artist, whose specialties are absolutely unique; Misses Melville and Stetson, two vocalists, who are well known here; De Berssel, a lightning and artistic modeler in clay; the Brothers Dixon, musical clowns, and Clayton and Jenkins make here in a specialty show. Not only are the acts all new, but they are all free from vulgarity and coarseness. The theater was acked at both performances yesterday and a like state of affairs may be expected all week, for this is a vaudeville organization that has never been equaled here.

Van Leer and Harton do a good knockabout act. Zamora gives a taking trapeze performance. Mc-Roble and Evans and Miss Pearl Inman are new people in the aggregation, who do good turns. Bryant and Saville, Charles Harris and Neille Walters, and C. W. Littlefield, in his imitation of birds and animals, are well enough known here to need no further recommendation. The show continues through the week with two perform-

INSTRUCTIONS.

(Concluded from First Page.) sioner Blount, the substance of which has

FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS ASKED. Under date of Nov. 6, 1893, Minister Wilis reports his arrival, and on Nov. 11 he transmits a confidential letter to Secretary Gresham. He expected to interview the Queen, and had assured the British commissioner that the Queen would be protected from any attempt at assassination. and the next Monday he would insist upon her coming to the legation. He reported that the town is in a state of excitement. His letter of Nov. 16, which called out the changed instructions in the State Departtreme as to require further instructions." The words "first party," of course, refer to the ex-Queen. Under date of Nov. 18 Minister Willis reports that Mr. Da-mon, Minister of Finance, had called to detail rumors of trouble on the morrow-Kalakaua's birthday. "In view of these facts." Mr. Willis says, "I thought it proper, in an informal way, to make public the fact that there would be no decisive action by our government for three or four weeks, or until I had heard from Washington. I thought it proper, with the private knowledge and consent of all factions, to say that mob violence would not be allowed during the interval." Many citizens and the representatives of foreign governments had called to congratulate him on this step and its good effects. The last inclosure of the correspondence is the letter from Minister Thurston to Secretary Gresham, dated Dec. 5, Mr. Thurston claims for the provisional government that it is a duly organized and fully recognized and independent government. He denies that the provisional government had submitted to the President the power to arbitrate the case as between themselves and Queen Lilioukalani. He complains that his government has received no notice that it was on trial for its life, and has had no chance to bring witnesses to refute those of Mr. Blount. He argues that the provisional government, in its proclamation, has fixed no termination for itself but annexation to the United States, and denies that it can be said to terminate with the refusal of annexation. If United States representatives exceeded their power in the islands, that confers no power on the United States government to again do the same. And, if the ex-Queen abdicated under the belief that the provisional government would submit to the arbitration of the United States, that does not confer jurisdiction on the United States without the consent of the provisional government. In transmitting the Hawaiian correspondence to the House of Representatives President Cleveland said: "In compliance with a resolution of the House, I hereby transmit a report, with copies of the instructions given to Mr. Albert Willis, the representative of the United States now in the Hawaiian islands, and also the correspondence since the 4th day of March, 1889, concerning the relations of this government to those islands. In making this communication I have withheld only a dispatch from the former minister to Hawaii. No. 70, under date of Oct. 8, 1892, and a dispatch from the present minister. No under date of Nov. 16, 1893, because, in my opinion, the publication of these two papers would be incompatible with the public interests.

The dispatch of Nov. 16, 1893, is, withou doubt, the detailed information of the developments which prompted Minister Willis's telegraphic dispatch on the same date to Secretary Gresham, on which was based the order to suspend instructions.

FROM NAVAL OFFICERS.

Secretary Herbert submits a mass of correspondence from naval officers in command of the United States naval forces at Hawaii. It goes back to July, 1889, and is brought down to Admiral Irwin's brief confidential dispatch of Dec. 4, inst., to Mr. Herbert, telling him that the provisional government had a thousand men under arms. Nov. 1, 1892, Captain Wiltse reports that the Queen's persistent refusal and obstinacy to appoint a Cabinet may precipi-tate a crisis. Then, on Jan. 18, Captain Wiltse makes his report on the uprising and the landing of marines and sailors of the Boston under his command. He says: "On Jan. 16 there was a large and enthusiastic mass meeting, composed of repre-sentative men, at Honolulu, held in the largest hall in the city, at 2 p. m. On the same day I received from the United States minister a request to land sailors and marines from the Boston to protect the United States legation, consulate and the lives and property of American citizens. At 4:30 p. m., Jan. 16, I landed the ship's battalion, under the command of Lieutenant Commander William T. Swineburne. One detachment of marines was placed at the legation and one at the consulate, while the main body of men, with two pieces of artillery, were quartered in a hall in a central location near the government build-

The text of Minister Stevens's letter to Captain Wiltse, of Jan. 16, 1893, asking him to land the American troops, was as follows: "In view of the existing critical circumstances, indicating an inadequate local force, I request you to land marines and sailors from the ship under your command for the protection of the United States legation and the United States consulate, and to secure the safety of American life and property. Captain Wiltse then recites that the provisional government was established, the Queen dethroned and the new authorities recognized by the United States minister. Captain Wiltse reports to the Secretary of the Navy, under date of Feb. 1, 1893, that it is his intention to keep the United States ment, reads: "Views of first party so ex- | naval forces on shore until the provisiona government asks their withdrawal. He "There can be no doubt that the prompt landing of the battalion has prevented bloodshed and saved life and property." He also reports that the islands had been placed under the protection of United States by formal declaration of Minister Stevens. On Feb. 14, 1893, Secretary Tracy received a letter from Secretary John W. Foster, stating that the latter had telegraphed Minister Stevens, commending his action "so far as it lies within the scope of standing instructions to the legation and the naval commanders in Hawaiian waters, but disavowing it so far as it may appear to overstep that limit by setting the authority of the United States above that of the Hawaiian government." On April 6, Admiral Skerrett, then in command, reports that he hauled down the United States flag from the government building by order of Mr. Blount. He says there were no expressions from the citizens. On Nov. 16, Secretary Herbert telegraphed to Admiral Skerrett not to give aid to either party contending for government at Admiral Irwin's reports make up the re mainder of the naval correspondence. The Admiral confines himself strictly to nava affairs, and at no time mentions political questions. On Feb. 14 Secretary Tracy transmitted from Secretary Foster the following to Minister Stevens: "Your course in recognizing unopposed de facto government appears to have been discreet and in accordance with the facts. The rule of this government has uniformly been to recognize and enter into relations with any actual government in full possession of effective power with the assent of the people. You will continue to recognize the new government under such conditions."

SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., Dec. 18 .- The celebrated divorce case of William H. Irvine against Adelaide M. The shooting of Montgomery, formerly Irvine's business partner in Lincoln, caused a huge sensation in Indiana, where the Irvines were well known. Mrs. Irvine's mother and brother and sister are well-known Marion people, and equally well known in Wabash, d., where they once resided, and where Mrs. Irvine, then Addie Smith, was raised. Irvine had followed his wife and her lover to Chicago, and then returned to Lincoln, where he met Montgomery in a hotel and shot him to death in the dining room.

ably successful. Editor Assaulted.

FLORENCE, Kan., Dec. 18 .- J. F. Todd State Labor Commissioner, made a murderous assault with a loaded cane on J. E. House, editor of the Bulletin, on the depot platform this morning. Todd came up behind House, who was walking with a friend, and hit him over the ear. The latter grappled with him, threw him over against a truck and was pummeling him when the crowd separated them. The affair grew out of a newspaper controversy. Todd has been put under arrest waiting trial for assault with intent to kill.

from abroad, was to-day asked what the impression in London seemed to be regard-ing the Hawalian situation. "The most noticeable feature of the matter lies in the fact that they are keeping very quiet about it in London," he replied. "And how do they like the Wilson tariff They seem to be very much pleased with it." said Mr. Tracy.

COLORADO SHEEP WAR.

Another Chapter in a Series of Bloody Western Outrages.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 13 .- A special to the News from Grand Junction, Col., says another chapter was added to the sheep war in the plateau country yesterday. One hundred and twenty-five bucks belonging to J. A. Cunningham, of Salt Lake, which had been on the range in the plateau country during the summer, were being taken to Cisco, U. T., to join the large herd, and James Walker, who had them in charge, camped on Saturday night on what is known as the Hogback, about twenty miles east of this city. About 1 o'clock Sunday morning he was aroused by ten masked men, who, at the point of revolvers, compelled him to give up his gun. Two men were left to guard him and the rest drove the sheep a short distance from camp and killed about one hundred of them and left the rest with broken backs and legs.

Davis Will Case Not Settled. CHICAGO, Dec. 18 .- The statement was current here to-day that the famous Davis will case had been settled and that $11,000,-000, the estate of Andrew J. Davis, the Montana millionaire, would soon be divided among the heirs. The statement was, however, denied in a dispatch from James A. Talbott, the administrator of the estate. Millionaire Dying. YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 18 .- C. H. Andrews, the millionaire iron king of this city, is dangerously ill and may die at any time. He suffered a stroke of apoplexy some time ago, and his present illness is a result. Observed Cleanliness at Least. Late Saturday night burglars entered the Union co-operative laundry, on Virginia avenue. The thieves availed themselves of the rare opportunity offered to secure a
